PRIVACY POLICY

Facts

Why?
Financial companies choose how they share your personal information. Federal law gives consumers the right to limit some but not all sharing. Federal law also requires us to tell you how we collect, share and protect your personal information. Please read this notice carefully to understand what we do.

What?
The types of personal information we collect can include:

- Name
- Address
- Phone Numbers
- Email
- Date of Birth
- Social Security number
- Income/Assets
- Account Numbers
- Account transactions
- Investment experience

When you are no longer our client, we will continue to hold your information and share it as described in this notice.

How?
All financial companies need to share clients’ personal information to run their everyday business. In the section below, we list the reasons why financial companies can share their clients’ personal information, the reasons SlateStone chooses to share personal information and whether you can limit this sharing.

What We Do

How does SlateStone protect my personal information?
To protect your personal information from unauthorized access and use, we use security measures that comply with federal law. These measures include computer safeguards, secured files, secured buildings, limiting access to only those employees who need it to service your account.

Our online environment uses security technologies, including layered security and access controls over personal information.
How does SlateStone collect my personal information? We collect your personal information, for example, when you:
• Open an account
• Enter into an investment advisory relationship
• Tell us about your investment or retirement portfolio
• Seek advice about your investments
We also collect your personal information from others such as your broker or custodian.

Why can’t I limit all sharing? Federal law gives you the right to limit only:
• Sharing for affiliates’ everyday business purposes—information about your creditworthiness
• Affiliates from using your information to market to you
• Sharing for non-affiliates to market to you
State laws and individual companies may give you additional rights to limit sharing. See below for more on your rights under state law.
